RULES FOR PLAYING VOLLEYBALL

- Ball Touch Requirement: Women must touch the ball at least once before it crosses the net (this does not include a block or the first ball played over). For any 2 or 3 touches, women must also touch the ball.
- Player Positions: Players can stand anywhere on the court; there are no designated positions.
- Ball In or Out: If the ball touches the line, it is considered 'in'.
- Ball Return Rules: Players may use any part of their body to return the ball, but it must be hit - not caught or thrown. There will be no penalties for hitting faults; thus, actions like 'tipping,' 'dipping,' or playing an attacking shot with an open hand will not result in a loss of point.
- Touch Limitations: A block counts as the first touch of the ball, allowing for only 2 additional touches. Players cannot hit the ball consecutively unless executing a block, after which they may play a shot.
- Serving Rotation: Teams must maintain their rotation during serves.
- Net Interference: If a player touches the net while playing a shot or interferes with the opposing team's attacking shot before or during the hit, their team loses that point.
- Disputed Calls: Only the team captain is permitted to discuss any disputed calls with the referee.
- Injury Protocol: If a player is injured, they must leave the court for treatment. Time will not be stopped or extended, but a substitution may be made.
- Equal Points: If the match points are equal at full time, play will continue until one team leads by 2 points to win the match.
- Timeliness: Matches will start on time. If a team is not present at the court when the match starts, they will forfeit that set. Teams arriving late or causing intentional delays will receive a Yellow Card as a warning; a Red Card will result in a loss of point.
